THE REGION

Stretching 75 miles along the Ebro River in northern Spain, Rioja is divided into three distinct growing regions. The higher altitude regions to the north, Rioja Alta and Rioja Alavesa, are marked by moderate weather and a fair amount of moisture while Rioja Baja to the east experiences hot, dry weather. As most of the wines comprise a blend of the zones, the wines exhibit both fully ripe fruit alongside elegance and balance.

Originating from the word "Baza" which in Spanish means "trump card" or "new beginning," Vaza represents a fusion of Spain's winemaking vanguard and the country's rich wine history. The wines are produced at Solar Viejo, a winery situated on the shoulder of the medieval village of Laguardia in Rioja Alavesa.

THE GRAPES

90% Tempranillo, 10% Graciano

THE WINE

This unoaked, fruit-driven wine is bright, lush and delicious, which showcases the fruit flavors of traditional Tempranillo.

AT THE TABLE

This bright wine has soft aromas of balsamic, cranberry and spice with flavors of bright red fruit, cinnamon and vanilla with well integrated tannins making this an ideal wine with mild cheeses, almost any appetizer and poultry dishes.
